The place where Duncan bought morphine and strychnine a week previous to her death was also found. The father of Miss Baldsee is nearly deranged by the developments. A report received last night announces the arrest of Duncan at Dalton, Ga. The people declare that if he is brought back to his home he will be lynched.

To the Jefferson Board of Trade: We have no objections to Jefferson having navigation; in fact we are anxious that she should have it. But if it takes a deluge of rain all summer to keep the bayou up, we'd better do without navigation. Crops will be ruined if the rains continue, and there'll be nothing left but navigation. This section has been making liberal contributions towards keeping the bayou up and we don't feel that we should sacrifice our entire crops for the sake of navigation.
